

Person 1

The Family-Reliant Overthinker · Age 18 · Student

"When I'm spending time alone by myself without anyone, that happens a lot. I overthink about my future and stuff."

DEMOGRAPHICS

Age

18

Occupation

Student

Loneliness type

Social loneliness

Help-seeking

Moderate — via family

GOALS & MOTIVATIONS

PRIMARY GOALS

- Find companionship in classroom and college settings
- Manage academic deadlines without feeling overwhelmed
- Gain clarity and stop overthinking about the future

MOTIVATIONS

- Wants to feel less alone in daily academic life
- Desires a sense of control over plans and outcomes
- Motivated by family connection and their support

FRUSTRATIONS & PAIN POINTS

CURRENT FRUSTRATIONS

- No friends to hang out with in class — feels lonely in academic spaces
- Academic pressure and multiple deadlines at once
- Overthinks the future — persistent low-level anxiety
- Social media comparison makes them feel "not as complete" as others

WORKAROUNDS / COPING

- Plays games to distract and decompress
- Listens to music to calm down
- Spends time alone thinking to process emotions
- Talks to parents when things get heavy

BEHAVIORS & HABITS (observed from interview, not assumed)

Relies on parents for support Lonely in crowded classrooms Social media comparison behavior Music & gaming to cope
Future-oriented overthinker Deadlines cause stress Advises others to ask for help

Person 2

The Emotionally Guarded Introvert · Age 15 · Student

"Being surrounded by people but not really connecting with anyone — that's the worst kind of lonely."

DEMOGRAPHICS

Age

15

Occupation

Student

Loneliness type

Emotional loneliness

Help-seeking

Low — keeps to self

GOALS & MOTIVATIONS

PRIMARY GOALS

- Feel genuinely understood by at least one person
- Reduce internal pressure from deadlines and self-comparison
- Find emotional connection, not just physical company

MOTIVATIONS

- Craves meaningful conversation and being truly heard
- Wants to feel "enough" without external validation
- Prefers quiet, reflective environments over social noise

FRUSTRATIONS & PAIN POINTS

CURRENT FRUSTRATIONS

- Feels lonely at night and when alone for too long
- Feels disconnected even when surrounded by people
- Deadline pressure + feeling "not enough" vs. others
- Social media triggers self-doubt despite knowing it's not the full picture

WORKAROUNDS / COPING

- Listens to music to self-soothe
- Sits quietly and thinks things through alone
- Writes thoughts down to process emotions
- Talks to one close friend only when it gets "too heavy"

BEHAVIORS & HABITS (observed from interview, not assumed)

Keeps problems to self Journals for emotional regulation Music as primary coping tool Low help-seeking behavior
Aware of social media distortion Emotional suppression tendency One trusted friend as last resort

Person 3

The Socially Resilient Extrovert · Age 18 · Student

"Actually, reach out. You don't have to deal with everything alone. And don't compare your life to others."

DEMOGRAPHICS

Age

18

Occupation

Student

Loneliness type

Situational loneliness

Help-seeking

High — proactively reaches out

GOALS & MOTIVATIONS

PRIMARY GOALS

- Maintain an active social life and meaningful friendships
- Handle responsibilities without losing emotional stability
- Stay grounded and not let social media affect self-worth

MOTIVATIONS

- Derives energy and well-being from social interaction
- Values open communication and being part of a group
- Motivated by staying busy and keeping a positive mindset

FRUSTRATIONS & PAIN POINTS

CURRENT FRUSTRATIONS

- Feels lonely when plans get cancelled or friends are unavailable
- Feels left out when excluded from social events
- Too many responsibilities at once cause stress
- Dislikes situations that fall outside their control

WORKAROUNDS / COPING

- Goes out and meets friends to reset mood immediately
- Watches movies and listens to music to unwind
- Stays busy — activity is the primary coping strategy
- Talks openly to best friends or family about problems

BEHAVIORS & HABITS (observed from interview, not assumed)

Opens up to friends & family Socially active to cope Aware of social media competition Stays busy to regulate mood
Strong mutual support network Does not bottle up emotions Friends actively check in on them